

To whom it may concern,

I am writing this to let the FCC know that I do not support the new laws that may be set into place that allow businesses to control what I look up online. The whole point of the internet was for information to be shared between schools so that proper education could be given in almost every subject. The internet has developed into an amazing tool that all generations are taking part in; censoring the internet to have companies able to profit off of it is not fair to the economy, neither is it fair to the community, because friends do not have the same providers and therefore they would not have the same access. I am writing this to beg you to not pass this change.

Thank you for your consideration,
Johnathan Boone
